updated free tip:

Also, a free tip. If you land in the land of the Viking Librarians, you will always lose the game. It's a PICKLE but there is another way. (Or should I say cafe)

Cool, Thanks! Those weirdos will be making a reappearance much later. (After I watch all the current John Wick movies a million more times, and get to part three)

Love it! But I'm still playing around. I got a bunch of Game Overs...that mean old Viking King Branch Manager. I'm going to start over and try to do the things at the Tech Desk. I noticed a few spelling errors I passed on.

This one is fun. I really want to solve the mystery of those disappearing weirdos near the small meeting room!

Hey Jake! I finished pt. one of three on the RCPL rpg. It's not the one I'm using to make my blog post but hopefully by the end it will be a good example of where you can go after the children's books-based games. This is a text only location-based game, so it uses text to carry the game and what text you get is based on the location of a map I made ages ago. Since you work here, I don't think you need a map, everything is pretty much where it is in the actual building. Can you play thru it and tell me what you think?
